

Defending Health Care in 2017: What's at Stake for Hawaii

With a new president and Congress, the health care gains made throughout the last six years face their greatest threat yet. Congress has voted more than 60 times to roll back the historic progress that has been made to expand health coverage to millions of people in this country and to improve coverage for those who already had it. These proposed changes will put the health—and lives—of countless residents of Hawaii at risk. Here's what Hawaii stands to lose if the new president and Congress move forward to upend our health care system:

Tens of thousands of residents of Hawaii stand to lose health coverage

86,000 residents of Hawaii stand to lose their health coverage.¹

Hawaii stands to lose $4 billion in federal funding for Medicaid, CHIP, and financial assistance for marketplace coverage.²

Approximately 11,000 residents of Hawaii who currently get financial assistance to help pay for their health coverage will lose this help and will no longer have affordable coverage options. In 2016, residents of Hawaii receiving financial assistance saw their monthly premiums reduced on average $270 thanks to this help.³

The now-historically low rate of uninsured people will spike, with the number of uninsured in Hawaii increasing 99 percent by 2019.⁴ This will reverse the immense progress that has been made to expand coverage. Between 2013 and 2015:

- » The number of uninsured in Hawaii declined 40 percent.⁵

- » Working residents of Hawaii: The uninsured rate among working residents of Hawaii saw a 39 percent decline.⁶

Repeal will end Hawaii's Medicaid expansion and cause ripple effects across the state economy

108,000 people stand to lose health coverage, most of whom are working.⁷ The Medicaid expansion has extended health coverage to lower-income residents of Hawaii who hold down jobs that are the backbone of the state's economy—from fast food workers to home care attendants to construction workers to cashiers. Repeal will leave these hard working residents of Hawaii out in the cold.

Hawaii will lose millions in federal Medicaid funding. Over the course of a year and a half alone, Medicaid expansion brought $599 million in federal dollars into the state economy.⁸ The impact of that lost federal Medicaid funding will have a ripple effect throughout the state economy, affecting hospitals, other health care providers, and businesses.

Residents of Hawaii with private health insurance will be stripped of vital protections against discrimination

Approximately 560,000 residents of Hawaii with pre-existing conditions like asthma, diabetes, and cancer could once again be denied affordable, comprehensive coverage that actually covers their health care needs.⁹

Women in Hawaii will once again be charged more for health coverage just for being a woman.

- » Prior to the Affordable Care Act (ACA), women in Hawaii were charged as much as 23 percent more than men for the same coverage.¹⁰

Residents of Hawaii will once again face a world where insurance plans routinely cap the most they will pay for someone's health care in a year and in their lifetime, effectively cutting off coverage for the sickest individuals when they most need it.

- » Roughly 462,000 residents of Hawaii (including 115,000 children) saw lifetime limits on coverage disappear thanks to the ACA's ban on these practices.¹¹

Roughly one million of Hawaii's residents will lose guaranteed coverage of free preventive services, like recommended cancer screenings and vaccines

Approximately 631,000 residents of Hawaii with private health coverage (including 120,000 children) and 244,000 Hawaii seniors on Medicare will lose guaranteed access to free preventive care, like blood pressure screenings, immunizations, and cancer screenings.^{12, 13}

Insurance companies will no longer be required to put residents of Hawaii's premiums toward care, not profits

Insurers will no longer be held accountable for using people's premium dollars on care and quality improvement or paying back the difference.

- » Residents of Hawaii have received around $9 million in refunds from plans that overcharged for premiums since the ACA took effect.¹⁴

Thousands of seniors and people with disabilities will lose comprehensive drug coverage

The Medicare donut hole will re-open. This will leave Hawaii seniors and people with disabilities with a gap in prescription drug coverage and forced to pay thousands of dollars more in drug costs.

- » Seniors and people with disabilities in Hawaii have saved approximately $101 million on drug costs thanks to the ACA's closing the Medicare donut hole.¹⁵
- » In 2015 alone, approximately 24,000 seniors and people with disabilities in Hawaii saved on average $1,264 on drug costs.¹⁶
